1. Course Description / Rationale

As stated in The Ontario Curriculum, Grades 11 and 12: English, 2007 (revised):

> This course emphasizes the consolidation of the literacy, communication, and critical and creative thinking skills necessary for success in academic and daily life. Students will analyse a range of challenging literary texts from various periods, countries, and cultures; interpret and evaluate informational and graphic texts; and create oral, written, and media texts in a variety of forms. An important focus will be on using academic language coherently and confidently, selecting the reading strategies best suited to particular texts and particular purposes for reading, and developing greater control in writing. The course is intended to prepare students for university, college, or the workplace.

Overall curriculum expectations

By the end of this course, students will:

A. Oral Communication

- A1 listen in order to understand and respond appropriately in a variety of situations for a variety of purposes
- A2 use speaking skills and strategies appropriately to communicate with different audiences for a variety of purposes
- A3 reflect on and identify their strengths as listeners and speakers, areas for improvement, and the strategies they found most helpful in oral communication situations

B. Reading and Literature Studies

- B1 read and demonstrate an understanding of a variety of literary, informational, and graphic texts, using a range of strategies to construct meaning
- B2 recognize a variety of text forms, text features, and stylistic elements and demonstrate understanding of how they help communicate meaning
- B3 use knowledge of words and cueing systems to read fluently
- B4 reflect on and identify their strengths as readers, areas for improvement, and the strategies they found most helpful before, during, and after reading

C. Writing

- C1 generate, gather, and organize ideas and information to write for an intended purpose and audience
- C2 draft and revise their writing, using a variety of literary, informational, and graphic forms and stylistic elements appropriate for the purpose and audience
- C3 use editing, proofreading, and publishing skills and strategies, and knowledge of language conventions, to correct errors, refine expression, and present their work effectively
- C4 reflect on and identify their strengths as writers, areas for improvement, and the strategies they found most helpful at different stages in the writing process

D. Media Studies

- D1 demonstrate an understanding of a variety of media texts
- D2 identify some media forms and explain how the conventions and techniques associated with them are used to create meaning
- D3 create a variety of media texts for different purposes and audiences, using appropriate forms, conventions, and techniques
- D4 reflect on and identify their strengths as media interpreters and creators, areas for improvement, and the strategies they found most helpful in understanding and creating media texts

2. Outline of Course Content

Units are delivered in the sequence shown. Total scheduled time is 110 hours, including the final evaluation.

Unit	Title	Hours
1	AI & LLMs — critical reading of informational texts on artificial intelligence; personal essay with documented drafting and revision process	14
2	Shakespeare: Hamlet — historical and cultural context; close study of Acts I–V; theme tracking; thematic video adaptation with director's reflection	22
3	Journalism & Media Ethics — the spectrum of journalism; synthetic media and misinformation; source verification; original news report and social media production	18
4	Academic Research & Writing — reading academic writing; thesis and argument; essay structures beyond the five-paragraph form; MLA and APA citation; digital writing portfolio	20
5	Novel & Biography Study — one full-length work from the teacher-approved list (example novel: The Handmaid’s Tale, Margaret Atwood; also Indian Horse, Life of Pi, Never Let Me Go, Night, Educated), with one paired short story and two poems (e.g., Thomas King’s “Borders”, Atwood’s “Siren Song”, Eliot’s “Prufrock”); reading like a writer; literary analysis through multiple lenses; reading journal and reflective essay	20
6	Grade 12 Playbook — cross-strand video project (oral communication, reading, writing, media) with a script and cross-strand reflection; evaluated as term work	6
—	Final Examination — written examination (close reading of two passages from course texts printed on the paper, media studies, short answers across the course's texts, revision and reflection, essay); includes exam review	10
	Total	110

This outline reflects 110 hours of scheduled instructional time as required for credit. Units' mastery-based platform lets students progress at their own pace; scheduled hours represent the planned program, and course completion requires demonstrating all expectations regardless of pace.

3. Teaching and Learning Strategies

Instruction is delivered through the school's online learning platform and is designed for a range of learners consolidating skills for postsecondary study. Strategies include:

- Interactive online lessons — that require active student response at each step (guided questioning, immediate feedback, and worked examples) rather than passive reading or video watching.

- Modelled, guided, and independent practice — concepts are introduced with teacher-modelled exemplars, practised with scaffolded support, and consolidated through independent application at increasing levels of sophistication.
- Project-based application — each unit culminates in an authentic artifact (essay, video adaptation, news production, portfolio) connected to real audiences and purposes.
- Teacher conferencing — scheduled one-on-one conferences (video call or written conference) at draft and revision stages of major written work, including oral defence of choices.
- Synchronous support sessions — regularly scheduled live sessions for direct instruction, seminar-style discussion, and questions; recordings and follow-up materials provided for students unable to attend.
- Close and critical reading instruction — guided study of dramatic, literary, informational, and academic texts, with explicit strategy instruction for selecting reading approaches suited to text and purpose.
- Process writing — planning, drafting, revising, editing, proofreading, and publishing, with explicit instruction in academic voice, coherence, and citation (MLA and APA).
- Differentiated instruction — choice of texts and topics within teacher-set parameters, flexible pacing within unit deadlines, and multiple entry points to accommodate the range of learner needs, readiness, and interests in an online setting.

4. Strategies for Assessment and Evaluation of Student Performance

Assessment and evaluation follow Growing Success: Assessment, Evaluation, and Reporting in Ontario Schools, 2010, and the ministry's 2026–27 assessment and evaluation policy (memo of June 29, 2026; Growing Success update of October 14, 2026). Term work is 65% of the final grade: the six evaluated projects (Units 1–6, including the Grade 12 Playbook cross-strand video project). The final evaluation is 25%: a written examination with no culminating activity. Attendance and participation is 10%.

Component	Weight
Term work (assessment of learning across all units)	65%
Final evaluation — Written final examination, 2.5 hours in one sitting, proctored online or in person, assessed by the teacher against the published rubric. There is no culminating activity; the Grade 12 Playbook and all oral tasks are evaluated as term work.	25%
Attendance and participation — Determined by the ministry's level rubric: Level 4 (80–100%) for 0–2.5% of classes missed without excuse and consistent participation; Level 3 (70–79%) for 2.5–5%; Level 2 (60–69%) for 5–7.5%; Level 1 (50–59%) for 7.5–10%; below 50% for more than 10% missed. Excused absences never count against the student.	10%

Term projects follow a Create → Defend → Critique structure: students build an authentic artifact (Create), answer probing oral or written questions about their choices in a teacher conference (Defend), and evaluate and improve exemplar work against the standard (Critique). This structure provides triangulated evidence — products, observations, and conversations — as described in Growing Success.

Late and missed assignments, resubmission opportunities, and determination of the report card grade follow the school's assessment policy, with the grade reflecting the student's most consistent level of achievement, with special consideration given to more recent evidence.

Achievement chart categories

Category	Approximate weight
Knowledge and Understanding	25%
Thinking	25%
Communication	25%
Application	25%

Learning skills and work habits are assessed and reported separately from achievement of curriculum expectations.

5. Considerations for Program Planning

- Students with special education needs — Accommodations in a student's Individual Education Plan are applied to lessons, term projects and the final examination without changing the curriculum expectations: adjusted pacing, tasks broken into smaller steps, text-to-speech and speech-to-text, extended time and breaks, and extra one-to-one conferences. The same accommodations are used in instruction and in evaluation (course calendar, sections 3.12 and 5.1).
- English language learners — English proficiency is assessed at enrolment. The teacher adjusts pacing, pre-teaches vocabulary, offers scaffolded versions of texts, and allows bilingual dictionaries and extra time, including on the final examination (course calendar, section 4.4).
- Environmental education — No unit is built on environmental content. Students choose their own topics for persuasive writing, research and media work and may choose environmental issues; when they do, the teacher holds the work to the same standard of evidence and source-checking as any other topic.
- Equity and inclusive education — Texts come from a range of periods, countries and cultures, and students choose among them. Media units teach students to notice who is represented, who is left out and whose interests a text serves. The school's code of conduct applies to every discussion, conference and published piece (course calendar, section 1.6).

- Financial literacy — In Unit 3 students analyse how Canadian news start-ups pay for themselves (revenue model and audience). The final examination includes a video that ends in a sales link, and students explain what its view count does and does not prove.
- First Nations, Métis, and Inuit education — The Unit 5 reading list includes Indian Horse by Richard Wagamese (Ojibwe) and the poem “I Lost My Talk” by Rita Joe (Mi’kmaw), alongside “Borders” by Thomas King, about a Blackfoot family at the border. They are read as literature and for each author's own perspective, not as one voice for all nations.
- Information and communications technology — The course is delivered online. Students draft in Google Docs, produce video and screencasts in Canva, and publish a portfolio website. AI tools are allowed in term work under stated conditions: students declare their use, keep at least half of each written piece as their own writing, and show which AI suggestions they rejected and why. Students are taught to check sources before they rely on them. The final examination is typed in the school's exam screen during a proctored sitting. No other app, website, note or AI tool may be used, and the screen records when a student leaves it or pastes text.
- Career education — Each project is made for an audience outside the school, and the portfolio is built to be sent to an admissions office, a client or an employer. Students keep an Individual Pathways Plan, reviewed at least twice a year with a teacher or the Principal (course calendar, section 4.1).
- Cooperative education and experiential learning — Units does not offer cooperative education credits in 2026–27. Experiential learning in this course is the project work itself: writing, video and a portfolio made for real audiences (course calendar, section 3.7).
- Health and safety — Students work at their own computers. The teacher advises regular breaks from the screen and a quiet place to work, and tells students to keep home addresses, phone numbers and daily schedules out of anything they publish or record. The code of conduct covers online behaviour (course calendar, section 1.6).

6. Resources

- Units online learning platform (units.school) — interactive lessons, practice activities, submission and feedback workflows for all four strands.
- Core literary texts:
  - Hamlet by William Shakespeare (complete play)
  - A full-length biography (student-selected from a teacher-approved list)
  - Teacher- and student-selected literary, informational, academic, and graphic texts from diverse cultures and periods
- Media and informational texts: contemporary journalism from a range of outlets, academic articles, and multimedia texts selected for analysis and verification exercises.

- Production tools: Google Docs (drafting, MLA and APA citation), Canva (video, presentation, and screencast production), student-selected website builders for the digital portfolio.
- Curriculum and policy documents: The Ontario Curriculum, Grades 11 and 12: English, 2007 (revised); Growing Success: Assessment, Evaluation, and Reporting in Ontario Schools, 2010.
- Public library access: students are directed to Ontario public library digital collections for the biography study and research units.
